

KUNG FU FROG, RIVER RIVER LAKE 青蛙大俠江河湖

* 2019 Golden Tripod Award Recommended Title

A pond of little green frogs has been invaded by a toad prince. The frogs plead with their high-jumping heroine, River River Lake, to save them. But the toad prince is so strong – how will she learn to overcome him?

River River Lake is the champion of her pond. Her long legs let her jump higher than anyone else, and she's always the first to offer her fellow frogs help in solving any problem. Life is wonderful for her and her friends, until a toad prince from a faraway lake invades the pond and starts beating everybody up! What shall they do? The other frogs beg River River Lake to help, but what can she do against such a powerful bully? Her only option is to travel far and wide and learn enough kung fu to come back and beat him.

Liu Chen-Kuo gives free rein to his signature style of off-kilter illustration in this retelling of the David and Goliath story, in which persistence and the will to help others is all that's needed to overcome selfishness and violence. Brains and heart win over brawn once again, in the world of frogs as in the world of women and men.

In a little pond lived a group of little frogs.
One of them was called River River Lake,
and she had the strongest legs of all.

River River Lake taught the other little frogs how to swim and leap.

River River Lake was very friendly and was always happy to help.

One day,
a toad prince came from the big lake far, far away.
He was horrid to the little frogs.
They asked River River Lake to have a word with him.

Wham!

The little frogs had never seen anything like it.

The next morning
River River Lake, who had never left the pond before,
decided to go and learn kungfu.
She would follow little streams and cross big rivers
until she reached the big, big lake.
The little frogs thought she was very brave.

River River Lake came to some flowers and met a mantis.

“Where are you going, Little Frog?” asked the mantis.

“I’m going to learn kungfu!” said River River Lake.

“I can teach you a good move. Slash! Slash! Slash!”
